and how do these compare with norms and actual consumption/ losses in other countries; and

(c) what measures have been taken to reduce oil consumption and losses and the wide variations in these amongst different companies and what have the results thereof?

THE MINISTER OF STATE OF THE MINISTRY OF PETROLEUEM AND NATURAL GAS (CAPT. SATISH SHARMA): (a) Fuel (oil usage) and loss expressed as percentage weight on crude thruput varies from refinery to refinery. This is due to factors such as refinery complexity types of crude oil processed, product mix, product quality, levels of thruputs, severity of operation, vintage of technology/equipment and degree of integration of various process units with respect to energy conservation. The actual fuel (oil usage) & loss of Indian refineries is generally lower than the standard norms.

(b) and (c) The actual fuel & loss for various refineries during the last three years vis-a-vis standard norms is given in the annexure [See Appendix 176, Annexure No. 32]

Oil Usage (Fuel) & Loss depends on various factors and therefore, vary for each refinery. Hence not comparable with the refineries abroad in general.

Various measures undertaken at the refineries for energy conservation include adoption on modern pinchtechnology for heat optimisation in heat exchangers, replacement of oil inefficent furnaces with modern high efficiency furnaces, installation of digital distributed control and advance control systems, automation of despatches using PD meters and improved refinery maintenance practices etc.
